Love is Cruel Indeed.
Love comes unbidden and flees from those who pray at his shrine. He comes like all conquering kings—free hearted, generous, great; he goes like a thief in the night, carrying away all that has made life worth the living. He stabs us with the weapons we have given him, he drinks our tears and laughs at the tortures he inflicts, for love is cruel. * * * And yet we are ever ready again and again to bare our hearts to the blows. Men feel love with more intensity than women, and they forget more swiftly.—London Madame.

"Yes; so I've heard. Indulges a little too much sometimes, doesn't he?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS.

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Barre.

Most Barre people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework; lifting, reaching, or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Barre cures prove it.

Isaac Gonyea of 23 Branch street, Barre, Vt., says: "I have been bothered more or less for years with an aching back and sharp pains through my loins when stooping. My work requires a good deal of heavy lifting and as a rule in a damp place, which, of course, aggravates my trouble. I learned of people here in Barre who had been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, so I went to E. A. Drown's drug store and got a box. They did me a lot of good, and since I have used them there has been no pain in my back and I rest well nights. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as an excellent remedy for backache."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE LAWSON'S LOSS.

The Largest of Schooners Had Proved a Failure.

The wreck of the seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson brings to an unfortunate end the most interesting experiment in ocean transportation by sail power that has been undertaken for many years. It has long been believed that the sailing vessel is doomed to extinction as a competitor for ocean freight transportation. In fact, it has already been beaten by the steam vessel in almost every trade, except a few very long voyages, where the coal consumption becomes so great as to seriously cut down the steam vessel's carry capacity, and in the coasting trade between ports too small to support regular steamship lines or to attract tramp vessels.

It is in this latter trade on the Atlantic that the schooner has been developed from a small fisherman's craft to a vessel of large commercial importance. Several six-masted schooners have been built and are claimed to be commercially successful. The Lawson represented an attempt to carry the same idea still further, and a vessel was produced so large that it had to enter into direct competition with steam vessels to secure business.

While direct information is lacking, it is generally understood that the Lawson has not been profitable to her owners. Perhaps the attempt to restore the sailing vessel is doomed to failure, anyway. It seems to us, however, that the Lawson's record might have been different had she been equipped with auxiliary power. In fact, in discussing the design of the vessel at the time she was built, we expressed surprise that this had not been done.

In the five years since the Lawson was built, much progress has been made in the application of the internal combustion engine to marine use. It would today be possible, we judge, to equip a vessel like the Lawson with an oil engine of, say, 250 to 400 horse-power, sufficient to propel her at proper speed in harbors and other contracted waterways, where the maneuvering of a large sailing vessel is difficult and dangerous. Such an equipment would save much expense in tug fees, much time in entering and leaving ports, and would be a great safeguard in the handling of the vessel in storms. The fuel consumption of such a power equipment, used for such purposes only, would be a very small item of expense, and the cost of attendance and repairs would also be small.

If the Lawson has been unsuccessful, therefore, it merely shows that sails alone cannot compete with steam, notwithstanding the advantage of the schooner rig over square sails. It still remains possible that the sailing vessel with an auxiliary internal combustion engine can beat the steamship if not now, then in the future, when the inevitable advance occurs in the cost of coal.—Engineering News.

A REMARKABLE SAVINGS BANK RECORD

The Burlington Daily News pays its compliments to the Hyde Park Savings Bank in the following enthusiastic language:

Congratulations to ex Gov. Carroll S. Page and his Lamotte County Savings Bank and Trust Company!

The company with the long name has passed the million dollar mark—a remarkable record, considering its environment and the character of its clientele. Another remarkable thing is that every cent of this million dollars is invested in Vermont "to foster Vermont industries and develop Vermont's enterprises." It is stated that the bank does not own a dollar of doubtful paper and that it never had a dollar's worth of real estate except the bank building, which was charged to profit and loss some years ago. Once more, congratulations!

Commencing January 1908 this Bank will pay four per cent compounded semi-annually on all deposits large and small alike; will pay taxes on all sums up to $2,000 and will issue pass-books with no limits as to the times of withdrawal or other restrictions or limitations save those common to all Vermont Savings Banks. Deposits made on or before Feb. 15th will draw interest from Jan. 1st, those after Feb. 15th from Apr. 1st.
